Undercover Group Plots Downfall of Hitler, Sniping at Nazis With Slick Trick Propaganda

WASHINGTON — A new secret organization which has evolved a brand-new method of undermining the Nazi regime in Germany, and whose membership embraces a considerable number of government employees both in the United States and abroad, has just completed the first move in its anti-Nazi campaign.

This organization is called the International League for Truth in Germany.

Roosevelt Opens 160-Million-Dollar Fair in New York

President Reiterates His Hope for Peace Throughout World

POOR DAY FOR FAIR
Only 600,000 Turn Out, Due to Rain and Cold—Expected Million

NEW YORK. (AP)—President Roosevelt asserted Monday that the United States stood united in a desire to "encourage peace" and expressed for "all the Americas" the hope that the years to come will "break down many barriers of intercourse" between nations in Europe.

Opening the mammoth New York World's Fair on the Flushing meadows of Long Island, the executive avoided any reference to Chancellor Hitler's Reichstag address, but rededicated America to the cause of international good-will and declared her wagon was "fitted to a star."

"But it is a star of good will, a star of progress for mankind, a star of greater happiness and less hardship, a star of international good-will, and above all, a star of peace," he said.

"May the months to come carry us forward in the rays of that hope," the president spoke in the outdoor Court of Peace. On the speakers' stand were the president's wife and mother and other members of his family. Representatives of many of the 60 nations exhibiting at the fair were present, as were some members of the Supreme Court and cabinet.

Gov. Herbert H. Lehman and Mayor F. H. LaGuardia were other speakers on the hour's opening program, which began shortly after the president attended a private luncheon in the $3,000,000 federal building enclaving the Court of Peace. Down a broad vista not far away were the exhibition's symbols of the "world of tomorrow," the trylon and perisphere.

The president's words, devoted largely to historical landmarks and the growth of America since the inauguration of Washington as first president 150 years ago today, were broadcast throughout the world.

He said sectional and regional jealousies had been replaced by "national solidarity of economic and social thought" due to the form of government and its "spirit of wise tolerance."

"We in the United States, and, indeed, in all the Americas," he said, "remember that our population stems from many races and kindreds and tongues."

"Often, I think, we Americans offer up the silent prayer that on the continent of Europe, from which the American hemisphere was principally colonized, the years to come will break down many barriers of intercourse between nations—barriers which may be historic, but which so greatly through the centuries, have led to strife and hindered friendship and normal intercourse."

He said the United States stood today as "a completely homogeneous nation—united in its desire to encourage peace and good-will among all the nations of the world."

600,000 Visitors
The fair played today to an officially estimated crowd of 600,000 in the first eight hours—far short of the 1,000,000 expected.

Unsettled weather, with chill rain and wind following the sunny conditions that prevailed during President Roosevelt's speech, was regarded as a major factor in reducing the anticipated attendance at the opening of the $160,000,000 spectacle.

First day visitors jammed rubberneck buses, tractor trains and hand and motorized push-cars. Restaurants were crowded.

35,000 Hear President

Dignitaries from nations all over the earth, from many state and federal departments and a special train delegation numbering 600 congressmen, cabinet officers, Supreme Court justices and others from Washington heard the president's address.

Thirty-five thousand persons stood in the shadow of the trylon and perisphere to hear the president.

Softball Season to Start in Hope on Monday Night

Doubleheader Will Usher in Early Season Schedule

CEREMONY PLANNED

Roy Anderson to Toss First Ball—Mayor Atkins Will Be Batter

Softball, operated successfully for the first time in Hope last season, will get off to an early start this year with the opening of the league schedule Monday night at Fair Park.

Roy Anderson, chairman of the Fair Park commission, will toss the first ball and Mayor W. S. Atkins will be the batter. The brief opening ceremony is scheduled to begin at 7:15.

It was originally planned to have the 68-piece Hope High School band present to provide music, but the band has just returned from the strenuous state contest at Hot Springs and it was decided not to ask the members to participate.

Two Leagues Formed

Under the direction of Softball Commissioner Bill Brasher, two leagues were formed—a Class A league composed of four teams, and a Class B league composed of six teams.

Mr. Brasher was given sole authority over the operation of the two leagues and will settle any dispute that may arise during the playing season. He is to receive a salary from gate receipts.

An admission price of 5 and 10 cents will be charged all persons entering the grandstand, except those who are engaged in playing or officiating.

The ten teams of the two leagues are:

Class A—Bruner-Ivory Handle Co., Leo Robins, Alton CCC Camp, and Ozan.

Class B—Soll Conservation Service, Gunter Brothers Lumber Co., Geo. W. Robison, Bruner-Ivory, Alton CCC Camp, Unique Cafe.

Two Games Monday

The opening game, beginning at 7:30 will be between the Bruner-Ivory A team and the Alton CCC Camp A team.

The Leo Robins team will oppose Ozan in the second contest.

In an exhibition contest at the park Sunday, a team picked by Leo Compston defeated a Texarkana team, 3 to 1. Jimmy Daniels hit a home run in the last of the eighth with a man on base to break the 1-1 deadlock and give Hope victory. Jack O'Leary also hit a homer in the earlier innings.

The North Side Scrappers defeated a South Side baseball team, 4 to 2, at the park Sunday afternoon. Bell allowed only three hits while his mates were getting six off Bib White. Errors contributed to the South Side's defeat.

WASHINGTON. (AP)—President Roosevelt sent to the senate Monday the name of Daniel C. Roper, former Secretary of Commerce, to be minister to Canada.

Germany Demands Danzig, But Poles Are Resolved to Fight

BERLIN, Germany. (AP)—Adolf Hitler Monday proclaimed Germany one of the "most heavily armed nations of the world," and Nazi diplomats pressed their efforts to isolate Poland to make her ripe for yielding of the German demands.

In two speeches—one to 135,000 boys and girls of the Hitler Youth organization, and another to the "brawn and brain workers" in a Berlin mass meeting—he hit out at charges that Germany desires war.

He also took occasion to strike at the American action against German goods, saying:

Poland to Fight

WARSAW. (AP)—A reliable authority reported Sunday that chancellor Hitler had followed up Germany demands on Poland concerning Danzig and the Polish Corridor with more specific details of what he wants. This source said the fuhrer had notified Poland that the extra-territorial motor road he wants across the Polish Corridor to connect Germany and East Prussia (13.5 miles) wide.

Since Poland long has made it plain that she will fight rather than do any of her territory, mobilizing more than 1,000,000 men to back up her stand, observers took Hitler's reported "specifications" as a sign he intends to push his demands nevertheless. Some sources saw an attempt to frighten Warsaw into granting what he originally asked.

In his speech Friday to the Reichstag and in a note to Poland announcing denunciation of the Poland announcing denunciation of the 1934 German-Polish non-aggression treaty, Hitler disclosed for the first time Germany's terms for settling the Danzig-Polish Corridor issue. He told the Reichstag they were his "one and

First We Must Jealously Guard Our Own Liberties

It is quite true that the United States cannot afford to be indifferent to what goes on in the rest of the world. What destroys liberty in any part of the world tends eventually to destroy liberty in the rest of it.

But our concern with such remote events is a matter of degree, ranging from the almost purely theoretical right up to the imminently practical.

Liberty here and now is our first and most immediate concern. Nothing more true was ever said than that "eternal vigilance is the price of liberty."

Freedom is not maintained by the mere fact that 150 years ago our fathers won it. Day by day, in the smallest matters, we must ourselves fight for it if we are to keep it. A sorry joke on the United States it would be to find that by the time we had launched a great foreign crusade for liberty, we had ourselves lost it.

That is why, though it sometimes seems tiresome, it is necessary to keep drumming away at everything that looks as though it might be an infringement on the liberties of free men.

As never before, the federal government seem to be conscious of this side of freedom, and the Supreme Court has proved itself a real custodian of the people's liberty in several important cases.

The Department of Justice has set up a division specifically charged with safeguarding civil liberties.

Many states, irritated almost beyond endurance by clumsy and stupid Nazi propaganda, are considering laws to throttle it. Yet every legislator considering such laws must carefully consider: how far may such utterances be shut off without throttling every man's right to say or write what he please?

There are acts proposed to punish the "libel of races." Such proposals arise from irritation with the especially nauseous efforts to build up racial hatred.
Kinds of free speech?

After all, propaganda is simply the other fellow's free speech.

No set of ideas, bad or good, has ever been permanently suppressed by law. The bad ones die off of their own foolishness, the good ones survive in spite of any suppression.

America's one best defense, in fact its ultimate only defense, against "subversive" idea is to face the facts roll up our sleeves, and make life in the United States so much better than it is anywhere else in the world that nobody will listen to agitators.

Fishbein Explains Different Uses of Serums and Vaccines

The rapid progress of medicine, particularly in relationship to the control of diseases caused by germs, has brought into common use a large number of strange materials and new names for them. These are frequently misunderstood.

We talk about serums and vaccines, blood transfusions, inoculations, obstetrical and antitoxins. Many people use the terms serum and vaccine as if they were the same. Actually, these terms represent materials entirely different from each other.

A vaccine is made out of the bodies of the germs themselves. The germs are grown on mixtures of blood or milk or both. Then they are destroyed by heat. The dead bodies of the germs constitute the vaccine. Sometimes, however, live germs are used to make what is known as a "living vaccine."

A serum represents the fluid matterial of the blood of an animal, including the human being, who has been previously inoculated either with the bodies of living germs or with the poisons developed by germs, and which has developed in the blood materials to resist such germs or their poisons.

In other words, a serum is used because it contains protective substances against germs and their poisons. A vaccine is used because it stimulates the blood of the person into whom it is injected to form protective substances.

Sometimes it is possible to develop protective materials without actually having isolated the exact cause of the disease. This is, for instance, the case in relationship to vaccination against smallpox.

We have not isolated the germ or the organism which causes smallpox.
We do know, however, that cowpox is a similar disease, much milder in character.

Therefore, material is taken from the eruption in a case of cowpox and scratched onto the skin of a human being. This procedure is known as vaccination. It is followed by development in the body of the human being of resistance to infection with smallpox.

In contrast to such vaccination is the vaccination against typhoid fever and whooping cough. In this type of vaccination the dead organisms, or the germs which cause typhoid fever or which cause whooping cough, are injected into the body of the human being.

The human being then builds resistance against these diseases. Vaccines have also been developed against diseases like typhoid fever, typhus, dysentery, cholera, plague, pneumonia, and meningitis. The exact value is still to be determined in some of these diseases.

In a third type of the inoculation against disease, the poison from the germ is injected. Sometimes the poison is injected in its concentrated form;
sometimes it is greatly weakened ether by heating or by the addition of antiseptic substances; sometimes the resisting substance is added to the poison.

For instance, the toxin antitoxin used in diphtheria represents the poison of the diphtheria germ with a sufficient amount of the anti-substance to control it.

The toxoid that is used against diph-

Will Propaganda Sink Neutrality?

No book could be more timely today

a reaction against the disease.

gunda of 1914-1917, so successful that its effects remain in American feeling today, is summarized with this conclusion:

In the last analysis the American government was forced to join the Allies in 1917 because it had previously surrendered to them all its material, diplomatic and moral support. Norway, Sweden, Denmark and Holland refrained from such neutral conduct and, in spite of the fact that they suffered a great deal more than did this country, they escaped becoming involved.

Certainly, if the United States had estimated their self-restraint, she could also have remained at peace. The reason she did not act in the same way was because of the tremendously effective British propaganda campaign.

House had to compete with the propagandists of the Central Powers. In the United States, however, they had a free hand and controlled public opinion almost as closely as they did within their own boundaries. Consequently, there was developed within the United States a climate of opinion which influenced finance, industry, and government.
To some, the history of the "neutrality" period, demonstrates that the United States cannot keep out of war.
But the facts do not bear out any such contention. What it does prove is that it is impossible to be unneutral and keep out of war.

The Salutation Of The Dawn.
Listen to the salutation of the dawn!
Look to this day!
For it is life, the very life of life;
In its brief course lie all the realities
And verities of your existence;
The bliss of growth,
The glory of action,
The splendour of beauty,
For yesterday is but a dream,
And to-morrow but a vision;
But today well lived makes every yesterday
A dream of happiness,
And every tomorrow a vision of hope.
Look well, therefore to this day!
Such is the salutation of the dawn!

Thank You—My Friend

Yesterday about 3 o'clock . . .
A lady called me on the phone . . . and asked . . .
"Is the Picture 'LADY VANISHES' advertised to play at the New Monday the same one that has received such wonderful reviews in the Chicago newspapers . . ."

And I Replied

"Yes . . . It Is the Same"
Then . . . she asked me if I knew that this same picture "Lady Vanishes" was now in its eighth week in a New York theater.

Again—I Replied

"YES . . . I DID KNOW THIS FACT!"
Then she said . . . "It might be a wise move for you to let other less informed theatergoers know about the importance of this picture 'LADY VANISHES' THEN SHE HUNG UP! I Don't Know Who It Was . . . But She Apparently is . . . A Friend Indeed . . . Not Only of Mine . . . But Yours as Well!"
I have requested this ad to appear on the Woman's Page . . . and if the lady that called me . . . read this . . .

LAST TIMES MONDAY 10-20c

Ask Applications for School Posts

Applications for All Jobs Are to Be Put in Writing

The Hope High School Board announced Monday that it would elect a superintendent, principals, teachers, coaches, and other school employees at an early date.

The school board requested that all persons wishing to apply for positions for the ensuing year make written application and file it with the president of the board, J. P. Duffie. The board requests these applications as early as possible in order to complete plans for the new school year. While the above procedure has not been practiced in the past, the school board said they believed this system will be of material aid, and that a permanent file can be made of applications.

The above policy will be practiced from year to year, making a permanent record for the school.

Dickson, Johnson Lose Death Appeal

LITTLE ROCK—(AP)—Alfred (Pug) Dickson and Clarence (Bill) Johnson lost in the Arkansas Supreme Court Monday the last round of their legal fight to escape execution for the robbery-slitting last September of Elton Cooley, Hot Springs chain grocery official.

The tribunal denied a motion for rehearing of the decision three weeks ago which affirmed their conviction in Garland circuit court on first-degree murder charges. The supreme court's mandate will be delivered to Governor Bailey Friday for the setting of an execution date. The supreme court deferred a final decision on a motion asking a rehearing on its April 3d decision that poll tax receipts not signed with pen and ink are invalid for voting purposes.

Protestant Unit Joins Methodists

Schism Lasting 111 Years Is Ended With Ceremony at K. C.

KANSAS CITY, (AP)—The United Methodist church, in a simple ceremony symbolic of the healing of a schism 111 years old, Sunday consecrated two bishops from the former Protestant division, which split from the main church body in 1828.

The ceremony, performed by leaders of the Southern and Northern branches of the church, was significant of the Protestant division's absorption in the new Methodist church of approximately 8,000,000 members.

Under the uniting plan the Protestant division was allowed the two bishops. They were elected last Thursday by Protestant representatives among the 900 delegates here for the conference. Their consecration today was viewed as especially significant because the Protestant denomination originally broke away from the main body to found a church in which there was greater lay representation and no bishops.

F. D. R's Message and What It Means

Beatty Points Out Gradual Change in Foreign Policy

By MORGAN M. BEATTY
AP Feature Service Writer

WASHINGTON — There's a growing belief among the men who make world affairs a life study that President Roosevelt's peace message to Hitler and Mussolini will be remembered more for the things it left unsaid, than for the frank and positive statements it contained.

Nearly a year ago the AP Feature Service revealed for the first time a changing emphasis in American foreign policy. Without things as entanglements, the Roosevelt administration was slowly building up a new foreign relations picture.

The picture shifted slowly to include more of a show of backbone and also a new element of mystery. The change was not public and openly discussed then, nor is it now.

At that time it was disclosed in "What It Means" that the administration policy was based on the principle of keeping our powder dry, and letting nobody know when, or if, it would be used. The powder, of course, is our big Navy.

Elect Anglo Enter In?

But you don't find that new element you have to read into the peace in the President's peace message. appeal the order—issued the same day—for the main fleet to move back into the Pacific.

If there is any undercover evidence that the Japanese are up to their old trick of seizing upon trouble in the western world to increase their power in the Pacific the fact remains that nothing was said about Japan in the fleet order. Therefore, that order presents to the world a minor mystery. The world can draw its own conclusions, but also it must get at the same time the picture of a stern Uncle Sam, speaking for peace, but keeping his six-shooter at the ready.

Couple that picture with the President's statement that the appeal from America was made in strength, not weakness, and you find that show of backbone appearing in our new foreign

SERIAL STORY BORDER ADVENTURE

BY OREN ARNOLD
COPYRIGHT, 1939, NEA SERVICE, INC.

Yesterday, Betty is put to work in Barro's laundry, doing outside to spread clothes and looking over in El Paso and the huge college "spit" on a hill, she hits an idea to outsmart Barro. Will it work?

CHAPTER XXII

"YOU say, Hope, that she wasn't in her hotel all night?"

Sheridan Starr, a few inches taller and several pounds heavier than Hope Kildare, gripped his friend's arm, now with fingers like steel. Concern for Betty Mary had moved the larger man deeply.

"That's what I said," Hope admitted somberly. "I couldn't just go to bed, my lord, man!"

Sherry swallowed. He hated to see Hope this way. Cold and formal, and almost antagonistic toward him. He who had been comradely so many years.

"Well—no! Of course not, Hope. I—the fact is, her two white signals, for safety, had been hanging there for several days, and nothing likely would hurt her if she just stayed around town in Juarez. She's smart, I figure. She can take care of herself. Now if there had been three white spots—that would mean trouble! But just a blank window."

Hope spoke impatiently, almost snapping it.

"A blank window, and Betty unaccountably missing now for nearly 24 hours, stupid! Well, you sit here and talk, but I'm going to do something."

Sherry himself was angered a bit by that.

"All right, what?" he barked.

"What you going to do? You were already over there. If you didn't want me to help you, why'd you come here at daybreak? You know well enough we've been teaming together all our life, especially in a pinch like this, Hope. Git off your high horse now, and let's go into a huddle. First thing's to find her. Then any personal business, love and whatever, can be settled your own way. See what I mean?"

THAT made sense, of course, and Hope's inherent good judgment told him so. Actually, he felt a trifle ashamed, and he tried to convey that fact now by co-operating with Sheridan.

"Maybe she moved her room, and figured we'd have sense enough to follow her signal in another hotel or something," he ventured. Obviously he was desperate, but still did not know just which way to turn.

"No, I doubt that," Sherry said. "But we can sure look and see what time it is?"

Both looked at their watches and saw it was 7:25.

"The man in the lower will come down at 8. One of us'll slip up for a bit then, take the glasses and study every window in Juarez. Then we'll go a mile or two up river and look from another angle. I reckon we could go look from that angle first, while we wait."

In two minutes they were in a government car hastening out one of the streets near the river. When they topped a rise that gave them a clear view of the town across in Mexico, they parked and studied Juarez carefully.

"There's plenty of white spots but none in any window," Sheridan said finally.

"It could be just two spots, any color. Didn't her note say 'two for safety, three for help, any way any time'? She—she gave the note to you that night, not to me."

Hope added this last a little bitterly, coldly.

"Yep, that's a fact. I mean about the signals. She just happened to give it to me is all."

The conversation served, however, to upset Sheridan Starr considerably, in his heart.

When Hope said nothing to that, Sherry spoke again. "It's nearly 8. Let's go on back and take a look from the tower. We better be there in case she phones again, too."

They talked scarcely at all on their way back to the Patrol headquarters and when they had parked, the man from above was just coming off shift. He saw Hope and Sherry as he clambered down his ladder-like steps.

"Hey, you two hams," he hailed them good-naturedly. "Weren't you interested in Boy Scout signals or something a few days ago? You asked me about two white spots in a hotel window once."

"Yes! Why?" Hope and Sherry looked intently at him. "What is it? Did you see the signals today?"

"Hold yore hosses! No, I didn't see no two white spots in no window. In fact I guess what I saw was just clothes drying. But away over at that ranch house—the old Terrazas place, you know?—are three white spots, sort of up on the hill, but—"

"Three?" Sherry barked it.

"Yeah. But it's just sheets drying, near's I can make out with the glasses. Still, it's a funny time of day to hang out—"

"But that's Luis Barro's home now, man!"

Sherry and Hope were staring at each other as if a bomb had exploded at their heels.

BETTY MARY JORDAN, a prisoner, behaved far better than her captor might have expected her to.

It was evident that Luis Barro told two of his guards to watch her closely, for often they came to check up on her, and each time found her peacefully at work. Not as scared as she had been, she maintained a front of abject fear, nevertheless. At that, it wasn't all pretense.

She labored in the laundry until after sunset.

"It is night," she told the women in charge there. "Here are still some large linens. Shall I hang them out now, even so?"

"Things dry at night in this air," the woman said. "But do you think you can slip by the guard?"

Betty Mary didn't try to escape. With the clothes lines already full, she climbed 60 feet or so up the steep hill—well above the roof line of the house—and tied three white sheets to shrubs that grew there, as she had often seen wash women do in Texas. Indeed, some dark shirts had been pinned there by another laundry worker this day, and that had really helped Betty to conceive her own idea.

She learned that evening that Barro was extremely busy with the aliens who kept coming. More than 100 were assembled now. Barro would have so many men under arms that no Border force, short of a detachment of soldiers, would be able to block him. Daringly, he would fight right on through in the remote event that the American officers had wind of his plan. With Betty Mary, the spy, now helpless, he probably felt that his crossing would be safe, she realized. Barro couldn't even know that she had learned all of his plans, but he was keeping her, just for safety. Then, too, he was attracted to her.

These points and more she picked up from the gossip servants in the kitchens and elsewhere, overhearing part of it. She devoted much time to looking for a chance to slip away unnoticed, but there wasn't the merest opportunity. The cook soon put her to washing dishes, and after she had been locked finally in for the night, with but little sleep, she was working again in the kitchen before dawn.

She peered out a back window once at daybreak and felt two causes for gratitude—she had not seen Luis Barro again, and her three white sheets were still hanging.

Russian Pilots in Visit to N. Y. Fair

Delayed by Crash After Crossing Atlantic, But They Get There

NEW YORK.—(AP)—Two Russian aviators Sunday night concluded a flight from Moscow which was projected as a non-stop venture but required three installments. They landed at Floyd Bennett field at 9:32 p. m.

Good-Looking House Frock Designed for Large Women

By CAROL DAY

This is such a good-looking dress that it shouldn't spend all of its time working round the house. Omit the pockets, and Pattern 8463 will be smart in street fabrics when you dash out for last-minute shopping or drive to the station to pick up guests.

The belt, buttoned in the back, makes the waistline look neat and trim, and at the same time it is easy to work in. The unbroken line of the front adds to the slenderizing effort, too. Armholes are comfortably ample. That square neckline is a pleasing change from the usual deep V, and it is cut to a dip in the front so that it won't make your face look wide. For this design, choose gingham, linen or lawn.

Pattern 8463 is designed for sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, 50 and 52. Size 38 requires 4 1/2 yards of 35-inch material; 2 1/2 yards of braid.
